The Minolta RP600Z is a desk-top reader printer. The PR600Z is primarily for microfiche applications, and it comes with a built-in fiche carrier for reading all type of fiche and jackets. However, the RP606Z can be equipped to handle microfilm. This unit is very quiet and can be placed on any desk-top where high-quality print is required.

Metro Imaging Services | Minolta reader printer

The RP600Z was mechanically almost identical to the RP-503 except for the optics section and electronics. The paper take-up, transport, imaging section and fuser were almost identical. The RP606Z offered a few advantages over the RP-605Z like motorized image rotation (which later became an option on the RP-605Z) and it could print on legal (8.5x14) paper which the RP605Z could not do.

Microfilm readers and printers can be finicky. Sometimes they just need to be cleaned, other times you need a new lens or roller, and worst of all, occasionally you need to buy a new machine altogether. Fortunately, many times a reader/printer's problem has a simple, cost-free solution. So, before you go Office Space on your...
